MISS BRUCE'S FIGHT

She Used a Gun and Pistol, But Was Overpowered.

SLIGHT CLUE TO THE MURDERER

It is Believed that He Was a R justed Suitor of the Young Woman-

Mrs. Hatch and the Cuttdren Were Killed to Designy Evidence - Miss Rence Shot Through the Cheek, Her Shull Crushed. and Her Neck Stashed-Monuted Men Scouring the Country - The Young Woman Highly Spoken of in New York - The Batches Were from Maine.

New Your, Dec. 15 -The horrible details of the quadruple murder at New Smyrna, Fis., were discussed all through New York city yesterday. The chief interest centered in the identity of Miss Adeline H. Bruce, of this city, who was one of the victims.

Miss Bruce was the youngest daughter of Hamilton Bruce, who, 15 years ago, was a well-known social and political figure in this city. He was a descendant of an old Knickerhooger family.

He took a prominent part in the anti-slavery movement, and when Lincoln became President he was made Deputy Collector of the Port of New York.

ar. Bruce held a number of other prominent positions, and died in 1877, aged 64. Of his four children, but two lived. The elder married Frank J. Packwood, who purchased the orange grove at New Sagran, Fig., where the awful orims was committed. When the wife of Packwood died about three years ago Adeline went to his home to take care of his children, there they to the North had been completely severed by the death of her mother a couple of years before, and she resolved to devote her life to her sister's children. All who had known Mass Bruce describe her who had known M as Bruce describe her as a charming and accomplished woman. Jacksonville, Fin., Dec. 15.—The details of Saturday's flendish crime near New Smyrna, in Meinsia county, are more grewsome and horrible as they come to light, and it is hard to believe that any human being could do such a deed. It is wonderful how one man could kill so many and then conceal his deed, it is wonderful now one man could kill so many and then concent his tracks so well, for up to now no clew has been found, although more than a hundred man, well armed and thoroughly acquainted with the coun-try, have been hunting since Saturday moreous. morning

On Friday F. J. Packwood left his sister-in-law, Miss Bruce, and his little son in charge of the house and went to Maitland. Miss Bruce sent for Mrs. Hatch, a friend, who lived a mile or two away. She came with her son to spend the night. Irwin Jenkins, a negro, liv-ing a mile south, had been in the habit of calling at the house on Saturdays on his way to New Smyrns to see if the people wanted errands done or goods bought. Saturday morning he went to the house and knocked at the door, but got no reply.

He soon observed that the front win-dow opening on the places and facing the east had been smasned in. The catthe east had been smashed in. The cattle were in the yard, the gates were open, and a heavy piece of scantling lay nearby. Fearing that something was wrong, be hastened to the house of E.
J. Hamilt, the nearest neighbor, who lived a mile away. The alarm was raised and half a dozen neighbors gathered and went to the Packwood home, where an appalling sight met them. It was substantially as stated in vester. was substantially as stated in yester ay's despatch. It was evident from the situation of the bodies that while the muriterer was entering the window Mass Bruce had secured an old Smith & Wesson pistol, which was handy, and fired at him. The ball took effect in the window frame. Then she want to a closet, and securing a double barrelled grown tried to a double barrelled gun tried to shoot the flend, but the hammers snapped on shells that had been exploded many days before. She was then overpowered, assaulted and battered to death with the gun stock. It was at first thought that the crime was the work of tramps, but this de-delusion was subsequently dispelled by delusion was subsequently dispoiled by finding a trail leading around the yard to the north and then through the hummock south to the road, a path that none could travel unless he was familiar with the country. That it was the work of a litted lover after revenge is now the supposition, and various clues are being worked upon.

Mr. Pack wood says he has suspicious

Mr. Packwood says he has suspicions Mr. Fackwood says he has suspicious which will be revealed at the right time. This confirms the theory of a rejected autor to a degree. The morderer must have been well-known in the neighbor hood, as he killed the children and visitor, evidently fearing they would tell. The people of New Suryna all say that the man belongs to the neighborhood, there being many facts which confirm that suspicion. The victims were buried yesterday, hundreds of people following the bodies to the grave. Mrs. Hatch is from Malne, but has lived bers for many years.

District Attorney Nicoli Deemed in His Daly to Act, and Claims to Have Proof. that Field Converted Five Shares of Union Pacific Stock to His Own Us-Another Instance of the Young Mau's Wrongdoing.

New York, Dec. 15 .- Edward M. Field, the senior member of the defunct firm of Field, Lindley, Wiechers & Co., was taken from the private sanitarium of Dr. Granger at White Plaine last night by three of Inspector Byrnes' detectives and brought to Police Headquarters in this city. The warrant upon which the prisoner was apprehended was issued in the afternoon by Judge Martine in the Court of General Sessiona.

It was granted on an affidavit submitted by the District-Attorney charging Field with grand larceny in the first degree. The detectives who served the warrant were told to get their man without regard to the protests of the guardian in whose keeping he might be.

When the detectives reached the sanitarium and stated their errand, Ir. Granger at first refused to turn Field.

He was quietly told that force would be resorted to to secure the prisoner, if other means falled, and thereupon submitted and brought out Mr. Field. There are a great many dilapidated sidewalks in various parts of the town.

He was put off with plausible excuses and asked to call next day. He did so, and was put off with some other pretext. He went again next day, and was told. He went again next day, and was told that Mr. Field had just stepped out. On the following day the firm failed.

The tailor has received a hint from a member of the Field family, stating that if he will not begin criminal prosecution he will get his money back. A Wall street banker to whom the tullor told his story has salvised him to insti-tute criminal proceedings against every member of the firm.

The District Attorney says he has information which leads him to believe that Field has disposed of five shares of Union Pacific stock and converted them to his own use.
